By storing the visitor's settings and user habits, cookies are also used to facilitate navigation and thus the use of the website. Some of the cookies used are only temporary and disappear when the browser is closed, while others are stored on the computer for a longer period of time, meaning that if the website is visited regularly, the visitor's browser remembers the settings that were used previously, and therefore it is not necessary to accept the cookie information again each time the visitor visits the website.

Session cookies are stored for the duration of the visit and are automatically deleted at the end of the session or when the browser is closed.

2. Cookies ensuring basic functions (essential cookies)

These cookies allow our website to remember which mode of operation has been selected (e.g.: the cookie policy has been accepted). Without these cookies, the website cannot function properly.

Essential cookies do not record any personal data, only an identification number is stored and, for example, it informs the site that the cookie policy was accepted previously. Essential cookies are stored by the browser of the client computer.

The information stored by the cookies is used only for the purposes described here, and is not used by the Curia to identify the data subject.

Visitors are reminded that, as cookies are intended to support and facilitate the usability and functionality of the website, it cannot be guaranteed that visitors will be able to use all functions of the website in their entirety if they disable cookies.
