In relation with the use of the "KURIA-Vendeg" Wi-Fi network: the length of internet use.

In relation with the use of the telephone network: it is automatically deleted depending on storage capacity.

8. Recipients of personal data

In relation with the Data subject's entry to an event organised by the Curia: the full name in a document with a photo proving the identity of the person is transferred by the Curia to the Standby Police Service.

In relation with the use of the "KURIA-Vendeg" Wi-Fi network: no personal data is transferred by the Curia to recipients.

In relation with the use of the telephone network: no personal data is transferred by the Curia to recipients.

9. Data subject's rights in relation to data processing

9.1 Right to access

The data subject may request in writing to be informed by the Curia:

- of the processed personal data,
- of the legal basis for the processing,
- of the purpose of data processing,
- of the source of the data processed (if the data are not collected by the Curia from the data subject);

- of the planned storage period for the personal data or, if this is not possible, of the criteria for determining that period;
- of the recipients the Curia has disclosed or will disclose personal data to, including in particular recipients in third countries or international organisations;
- of the existence of appropriate safeguards regarding the transfer in accordance with Article 46 of the GDPR, if his/her personal data have been transferred to a third country or an international organisation;
- of the right to lodge a complaint with the Supervisory Authority;
- of the fact that automated processing is being carried out and, in this context, about the significance of data processing and its consequences for the data subject.

9.2 Right to rectification

The data subject may request in writing, without giving reasons, that the Curia correct his/her inaccurate personal data or, if compatible with the purposes of the data processing, supplement his/her personal data.

The Curia shall inform those to whom the personal data have been disclosed about the rectification of personal data unless this is impossible or involves a disproportionately great effort. Upon the data subject's request, the Curia will inform him/her of these recipients.

9.3 Right to erasure

The data subject may request the erasure of personal data by the Curia by specifying the particular personal data and the reason for the erasure, if any of the following causes applies:

- a) the personal data are no longer needed for the purposes for which they were collected or otherwise processed by the Curia,
- b) the Curia processed the personal data based on the consent of the data subject and the consent has been withdrawn in writing by the data subject and there is no other legal basis for the data processing,
- c) the data subject objects to the data processing based on the legitimate interest of the Curia or a third party, and no legitimate grounds overriding the data subject's interests or rights exist for the data processing,

- d) the Curia has processed the data subject's personal data unlawfully,
- e) the personal data processed by the Curia must be erased so as to comply with a legal obligation under EU law or national law applicable to the Curia.

The Curia is not obliged to comply with the request to erase personal data if the processing of the personal data is needed:

- a) to exercise the right to freedom of expression and information,
- b) to comply with an obligation under EU or national law or to perform a task in the public interest or when exercising official authority vested in the Curia,
- c) to achieve a public interest in the field of public health,
- d) for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific and historical research purposes, or statistical purposes, if the right to erasure would be likely to render the data processing impossible or would seriously jeopardise it, or
- e) to present, exercise or defend legal claims.

The Curia shall inform those to whom the personal data have been disclosed of the erasure of the personal data unless it is impossible or involves a disproportionately great effort. Upon the data subject's request, the Curia will inform him/her of these recipients.

The data subject may withdraw his/her consent in writing at any time, but personal data processing carried out prior to the withdrawal shall continue to be lawful after the withdrawal.

9.4 Right to restriction

The data subject may request in writing that the processing of his/her personal data be restricted by the Curia where one of the following applies:

- (a) the accuracy of the personal data is contested by the data subject, for a period enabling the controller to verify the accuracy of the personal data;
- (b) the processing of data is unlawful and the data subject opposes the erasure of the personal data and requests the restriction of their use instead;

- (c) the Curia no longer needs the personal data for the purposes of the processing, but they are required by the data subject for the submission, enforcement or defence of legal claims;
- (d) the data subject has objected to the data processing; in this case, the restriction shall apply pending the verification whether the legitimate grounds of the controller override those of the data subject;
- (e) the Supervisory Authority orders it.

Where the processing of some type of personal data has been restricted, such data shall, with the exception of storage, only be processed with the data subject's consent or for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims, or for the protection of the rights of another natural or legal person, or for reasons of important public interest of the European Union or of a Member State. The Curia shall inform the data subject in advance that the restriction on data processing is to be lifted.

The Curia shall inform those to whom it has disclosed the personal data about the restriction unless it is impossible or involves a disproportionately great effort. At the request of the data subject, the Curia shall inform him/her of the recipients.

9.5 Right to object

The data subject may object at any time, on grounds relating to his/her particular situation, to the processing of personal data concerning him/her if the processing is necessary for the performance of tasks carried out in the public interest or for exercising public authority powers vested in the Curia.

The request may not be granted if it can be proved that there are compelling legitimate grounds for the processing which override the interests, rights, and freedoms of the data subject, or for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims.

10. Exercising data subject's rights

To exercise the above rights, the data subject may submit a request to the Curia, which will be granted without undue delay but within a maximum of one month from the date of receipt. This deadline may be extended by a further period of two months in consideration of the complexity of the request and the number of requests.

11. Legal remedy

In the event of unlawful data processing, the data subject may appeal to the Supervisory Authority or initiate a civil lawsuit against the Curia. The lawsuit may also be initiated before the High Court of Budapest having jurisdiction at the seat of the Curia, or, at the choice of the data subject, before the court having jurisdiction at his/her place of domicile or residence.
